

Presentation Format

During one set of paired weeks in this course, you will be appointed as a Presenter. When you are the Presenter, you will prepare an individual academic presentation, much like a poster session. Your presentation should include an analysis and synthesis of prior research, and your presentation begins the interaction with your colleagues. You will prepare a PowerPoint presentation of 7–10 slides to demonstrate your understanding of the research.

Outline for Presentations

The following PowerPoint presentation outline is suggested:

Slide Number	Contents of Slide should include:
Slide 1	Title Slide—Weeks X–X/Week Title/Presenter Name
Slides 2–3	An incorporation and analysis of the Required Resources from this pair of weeks, including identification of an original research topic (related to the general topic for the week, to a specific reading for the week, or to apparent gaps in the literature)
Slides 4–6	An identification of principal schools of thought, tendencies in the academic literature, or commonalities that define the academic scholarship regarding your topic
Slides 7–8	An evaluation of the main concepts with a focus on their application to business/management practice and their impact on positive social change
Slides 9–10	APA-formatted References slide(s) (to include a minimum of 10 peer-reviewed, scholarly new references)

Guidelines for Presentations

You must use APA formatting throughout your presentation and incorporate direct evidence of addressing the Learning Objectives from this 2-week unit. Each of the content slides must include detailed notes/paragraphs in the Notes section with appropriate citation of peer-reviewed, scholarly references. Please refer to the Presentation Rubric for specific grading elements and criteria.

Note: If you choose to include graphics of any kind in your presentation, be prepared to accommodate participants with vision loss. Know that you may have to provide a written description of graphic or pictorial material for a fellow student who is visually impaired.

- It is the responsibility of any participant with a disability that limits access to the PowerPoint presentations to contact the Instructor and/or Disability Services to make a specific request regarding this assignment.
